

ABSTRACT

A break-prevention structure of an outside door handle for vehicles has a pivoting portion functioning as a rotating center of a door handle and is prevented from detaching from a handle base by a stopper formed at the pivoting portion of the door handle when the door handle is pulled, thus improving the operation and durability of the outside door handle.